We have the pleasure of communicating to our re'ders the grantlying intelligence the a combined land and water sites to said the week upon the Yankees at Plyniculh in this State, by our forces under General Hele and Commander Cook, has been completely necessing, ramiting in the capture of the place, with its gurrison, 30 please of satilizer, situate and supplies of all kinds. Two Yankee gunbouts were sunk and one small steam or captured. The number of prisoners is two thousand five hundred (250c). The place was taken by storm. The Yankee troops at Plymouth were under the command of Brigadies General Wessels, an old army officer, along with his command, was made prisoner. He is about now an afflicted Persel.

We are without further particulars and cannot state the smount of killed and wounded upon either side. Ours, we have heard reported, is not large, but for this we have only a separt to depend on and give it for want in my be work.

We think there is a mistake in the nesses of the naval commander. It seems to us that it ought to be Wood, not Conke. It will be recollected that it was Commander Wood who led the party that bearded and took a heavy Yankee gunbont under the protection of the Yankee batteries at Newbern.

Plymouth is the county seat of Washington county, situated on the Roambes ireer, some eight miles from where it empites into Albemarie cound. In 1850 its population was SU. At the commencement of the war it was probably twelve or thirteen hundred. It must have been strongly fortilied, as is shown by the number of cannon captured.

This galiant expirit of General Hoke and his brave men is a giorious relief to the goomy record of previous fallures at Newborn and Wassington. We do not like voturing criticisms upon military conduct, but we cannot help expressing our opinion that, had the interspellidon against Newborn been under the command of General Hoke, or that indended and enterprising young leader been permitted to have bis own way on that occasion, leawborn would have been ours. But let us not dwell upon past failures save as become to guard us assumed favore errors. Let us look t cons to gnard us assume fidure errors. Let us look to the present and rejoice at the suspicious opening of the campaign in Morth Carolina. This well delivered blow will do much to raise the spirite of our own troops and depress those of the Yankess. It is the first instance in the war where we have been nile to retake from the Yankess a position accessible to their gunboats. We trust that it will not be the last. How, Renaus, Kem per and others have now shown that it can be done, and we may look for many brilliant repetitions. If Mr. Barussic comes along with ble same of fiffness. If Mr. Barnade comes along with bis army of lifteen thousand green Yankens and as many blood regrees be will find that the ball has opened without waiting for s presence, and that if he stays he while to compelled tread a measure with those who will be killingly po

We would be glad even at this early moment to give just credit to all who here a part in the capture of the Yankers at Plymenth, but are making to do so. Of course we will take pleasure in giving hames and purcourse we have we get them.

Audd the excitement of such news, it is painful to reflect that even the most gioribes, reduced by the knowledge that there is a long it of killed and wounded yet to be made out. It is the price of liberty "A serviced yet to be made out. It is the price of the ryst.

Spanish Optoton of the Present Aspect of From the Diario de la Marina, of Havana, March 97.) Does the Government of Frendent Lincoln, do the thinking man of the Federal States, really believe in the re-establishment of the Union by means of a war which has now lasted three years?

We wish to put this question, but do not at present deare to shundaise it. Perhaps an opportunity is do so may soon present likeld. At this present moment, and according to what we have heard from Northern men, and according to what we have heard from Northern men, autority appeared to separation, but who, from the importance of their interests, are bound to think of the fourte, and who are on the best footing in high official chelon.

neither the Federal Covernment nor its military chiefs, nor capitalish of fortune and property, solvers in the possibility of subduing the South, and much less in the re-earablishment of the Union as it was formerly.

Why, then, carry on the war with so much fury? This question has not yet been not by the press; that privately it has, as wed in Washington as to other positical electre, for it appears that "lite not convenient to print in the newspapers, much has discons it, and, no-re all, answer at." If the people would open their eyes to the object which the government of Mr. Limcoln proposes to itself, the war would have to stop for want of resources of all kinds.
